What is the most difficult and rigorous process in a democracy? Passing a Constitutional amendment. Yet, it is the only tool left in the tool box to fix campaign spending. The Supreme Court opened elections to the highest bidder and there is nothing Congress can do now. Only we-the-people can fix it with an amendment passed by 38 state legislatures. Don't think it can be done? Well, American Promise and our guest Johannes Epke, a UCSC graduate, thinks it can! How can you make it happen?

Johannes Epke is a lawyer who has spent most of his career working on elections and campaign finance reforms. He is a California native, a proud banana slug - class of 2005, and graduate of Lewis & Clark Law School in Portland, Oregon. He is currently on staff with American Promise and previously worked for Move to Amend.
